Introduction {#Sec1} ===== Risk assessment is an essential step in community-acquired pneumonia (CAP) prevention and treatment. Objectives {#Sec2} ===== To evaluate risk factors for development of severe CAP in adults. Methods {#Sec3} ===== A retrospective study of CAP patients attended in a tertiary hospital from February 2008 to December 2012. Severe CAP was defined according to the IDSA guidelines. Patients were divided into two groups: those with CAP with severe presentation and those without severe presentation. Demographic, clinical, laboratory, radiological data and outcomes were compared. Results {#Sec4} 106 patients were studied; the majority were males (61%), with mean age of 61.9 years. Patients with severe presentation were older, with more comorbidities and had more frequent lower respiratory tract infection (LRTI) suspicion (50 vs 30.8%, p \
